Diving into the new rules for international data transfers

Invitation

TUESDAY
28 Sept. 2021

After the Summer holidays, it will be time to dive back into General Data Protection Regulation. After yet another busy year for data protection, let's take a fresh look at the international data transfers!

Arendt & Medernach has the pleasure of inviting you to our webinar “Diving into the new rules for international data transfers” which will be held Tuesday 28 September 2021.

Since last year and since the “Schrems II” ruling, many organisations face uncertainties concerning their personal data transfers to third countries. While continuing to rely upon international service providers to digitalize their processes or to carry out group data transfers, organisations now also have to pay particular attention to new requirements.

Astrid Wagner, Partner within our IP, Communication & Technology practice, Faustine Cachera, Senior Associate within our IP, Communication & Technology practice, and Bénédictte d'Allard, Senior Manager at Arendt Regulatory and Consulting, will explain the cross-border data transfer requirements introduced this year, guide you through the newly-required data transfer impact assessment, and introduce a pragmatic approach proposed by Arendt to help you comply with those new requirements.

Please feel free to pass on this information to any colleagues who may be interested in attending.
