

Milos Vulevic

Introduction

Milos Vulevic is a Counsel in the Finance & Capital Markets practice of Arendt & Medernach. He specialises in securities law as well as in capital markets and stock exchange regulation, advising on both debt and equity capital markets transactions.

He advises clients such as financial institutions and corporate or sovereign issuers on a wide range of matters including IPOs, securities placements and buybacks, consent solicitations and exchange offers, takeovers, securitisation, the legal and regulatory aspects of the Luxembourg legislation on prospectuses for securities, transparency obligations and market abuse, as well as applications for listing and admission to trading and the ongoing obligations resulting from such listings.

Education

- Milos holds a Master's in Financial Law from the University Of Strasbourg (France) and a postgraduate degree in Law from Union University of Belgrade (Serbia).

Previous Experience

- Prior to joining Arendt & Medernach, Milos worked for several years in the banking, finance and capital markets team of a Magic Circle law firm, in the banking and finance of another top-tier law firm in Luxembourg, and as legal counsel in an international central securities depository.
